Reds Step Up War in Vietnam; U.S. Loss Is Worst in 8 Months

38 GIs Slain, 184 Wounded In 128 Actions

By Terence Smith SAIGON, April 1 (NYT).-After six months of relative quiet, the Vietnam war flared up today with a coordinated series of enemy shellings and ground attacks

A total of 115 shellings and 13 ground assaults were reported by the U.S. Command.

The attacks cost the lives of at least 38 Americans, according to official reports. Military spokesmen said that they expected that figure to rise as additional reports are received from the field. Half the American casualties occurred during a bitter, four-hour enemy attack on a forward artillery ase near the Cambodian border.

Losses Reported

A total of 65 South Vietnamese and about 240 enemy troops were reported killed, while 184 Americans and 176 South Vietnames were listed as wounded in the initial reports.

So far as the allies were concerned, it was the costliest night of fighting in Vietnam in eight months. On Aug. 12, 1969, aboot 50 Americans and a dozen South Vietnamese died in the last comparable countrywide series of shellings. Ranking U.S. officers described

Turks Bury Quake Dead Without Rites

Haste to Reduce Risk of Epidemic

GEDIZ, April 1 (OPI).—Religious leaders released devout Moslems from traditional funeral rites today so that victims of western Turkey's earthquakes could be buried as quickly as possible.
Already, this stricken town, 140 miles south of Istanbul has acquired a vast new graveyard con-taining 963 bodies—most of the 1,064 persons counted so far as having been killed by the quakes.

A proclamation from religious leaders declared the dead would be recognized as martyrs and could be buried as found. This would release relatives of quake victims Last week Argentins became the first government to defy the demands of such kidnapoters, refus-

Local officials said they were striving to get many bodies buried quickly to ward off risks of an epidemic.

Meanwhile, a Ministry of Health spokesman in Ankara denied re-ports from outlying villages of an incipient epidemic.

He said four children had been taken to a hospital suffering from exposure and probably influenza,

Buys Himself a Private War

PITTSBURGH, April 1 (UPI).—A tall young Texan says he bought a Marine Corps enlisted man's uniform and paid his way to Vietnam so he could fight for his country.

The Marines discovered that Clifford Walker 2d, 23. a sixfoot, 170-pounder from Austin, was not a real Marine only after he was wounded a third time in action. The story came to light yesterday when Mr. Walker's attorney.

John J. Kirk, appeared before Judge Alton A. McDonald in Criminal Court.

Mr. Walker pleaded guilty to a larceny charge March 3 in connection with the theft of two suitcases at the Pittshurgh airport. The judge deferred sentencing pending a pre-sentence report. The Texan's lawyer told this story: Mr. Walker tried to join the Marines in 1963 but was rejected.

He then bought a Marine uniform and booked passage to Viet-nam through a travel agency. In Vietnam he typed up false orders and reported to Pirst Marine Headquarters. He served a year without pay since he was not listed on the payroll records. After he was wounded a third time, the Marines investigated and learned he had never been on the payroll. Mr. Walker was returned to the United States because of his wounds. The FBI then charged him with fraudulent use of a Marine is approaching a critical test of credibility this month as the third phase of announced American troop withdrawals from Southeast Asia nears completion.

The White House has denied a report that the Pentagon is budgeting for substantlai new withdrawais that would reduce American forces in Vietnam to 225,000 men by mid-1971. The remaining forces would consist largely of air. artillery and supply units. with only enough combat troops to provide protection for their bases.

Such a reduction would be consistent with repeated hints from Washington and Saigon over many months that the United States would bring home all of its ground combat forces from Vietnam by that time or earlier. When former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford last June called for withdrawal of all ground torces by the end of 1970, President Nixon said he hoped to beat that target. A new withdrawal announcement, promised for this month, should provide a clue to the prospects for fulfillment of such hopes.

The President announced the first cutback of 25,000 men last June. A further withdrawal of 35,000 men was announced in September, and in December Mr. Nixon said he would bring home an additional 50,000 men by April 15, lowering the ceiling to 434,000. The actual reduction to date has been 84,500 men, from a force level of 538,500 when the first cutback was announced, to a current total of 454.000. While the staged reductions so far have succeeded in dampening criticism of the war at home, they have not really significantly affected the military balance in Vietnam. The current level of American forces in the battle area is close to that which prevailed at the time of the enemy's Tet offensive in President Nixon's Vietnamization program early 1968. Since that time, South Vietnamese forces have been substantially expanded-and improved, if official sources are to be believed.

So far, President Nixon has merely been cutting fat from what many believed was a bloated American military establishment in South Vietnam. The next withdrawal, a Pentagon source observed recently, "will start cutting into the bone."

Administration spokesmen have insisted privately that the process of Vietnamization is "irreversible." President Nixon told the American people last November that he had adopted a plan "for the complete withdrawai of all United States combat ground forces and their replacement by South Vietnamese forces on an orderly scheduled timetable."

But the President appeared to contradict himself when he also declared that the rate of American withdrawal would depend on the progress of peace talks in Paris, the ability of South Vietnamese troops to take over the burden of the fighting and the degree of restraint shown by enemy troops. At the moment there are grounds for doobt on all of these counts, especially in view of stepped-up enemy activity in neighboring Cambodia and Laos.

The question in the minds of many Americans as another decision on withdrawal approaches is whether this administration will continue to fulfill its promise of "orderly scheduled" disengagement, even at the risk of "cutting into the bone." Or will the pace of withdrawal be allowed to lag-as Army leaders are reported to be urging-strengthening the belief of some critics that "Vietnamization" may be another way of saying that the war will go on in a continued-but futile-search for military victory?

For example, there are now two separate air control security sys-tems in the United States: the military air defense, which is designed to intercept enemy aircraft or missiles—to run into hostile air vehicles-and the air controllers, who are designed to keep civilian air vehicles from running into each other. But both, in times of national emergency, are coordinated under the command of the De-partment of Defense.

Sens. Bob Kerr and Mike Mon-roney of Oklahoma saw the point of the federal air service and helped set up in Oklahoma City a Federal Aviation Academy, with everything but a rootball team. But in the end, President Kennedy decided to unionize the air controllers along with most other federal employees. In retrospect, and even then, it was not his most brilliant decision, The results have been disappointing and even frightening. There are now three major organizations fighting for the loyalty and does of the 21,000 air controllers, and as usual, militancy and publicity, under F. Lee Bailey, attorney and executive director of the Profes-sional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, has set the pace.

Scary Conditions For himself and his union, it is not a bad case. Bailey has concentrated on the air controllers in New York, Washington, Chicago and Los Angeles, where they work under difficult and even scary circumstances, and live under economic and psychological urban pressures that are brutal particuarly in New York. But Bailey has given the impression that this small minority is typical, which is not true, and he has used their grievances against the public interest. Moreover, he has not fought against his grievances directly but courage to take the decisive steps has used the slowdown indirectly to achieve his aims and then denounced the "sick-out" as an "inconvenience" to the American

In recent days, leading spokes men for the major Palestinian commando groups have been discussing and redefining their major demand—the establishment of a "democratic state" in Palestine. And despite some differences of opinion among the groups as to exactly what is meant by a "democratic state," by every definition it would mean the abolition of the Jawish state of Israel. Thus, what the Palestinian lead-ers have in mind as the minimum basis for a settlement is utterly unacceptable to all Israeli leaders—even those "doves" who would willingly give up the occupied ter-ritories in return for a permanent accommodation with Israel's Arab neighbors. The suggestion has often been made in some quarters that the Palestinian Arabs would be content with an "entity" made up of various areas of the Israeli-occupied

Guerrilla Debate

As for what the commandes mean by a "democratic state," a debate printed recently by the Beirut newspaper Al-Anwar indicates that not all the Palestinian leaders are agreed on the matter. The groups questioned were el-Fatah, the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Syrian-oriented al-Saiga, the left-wing Popular Democratic Front and the Iraqi-directed Arab Liberation Front.

El-Fatah's representative. Farid al-Kha'ib, accused "imperialist quarters" of deliberately confusing a "democratic state" and the "sus-picious Palestine entitles" in the occupied territory.

What is sought, said the el-Fatah spokesman, "is not the development of the state of Israel to make it acceptable to the Arabs, as the Israeli member of parliament, Uri Aveneri, says. The objective is the dissolution of the Zionist state and the establishment of a new state by the will of the Palestinian national movement and that of the Jews who have been in Palesting before 1948 and those who came after them."

At the same time, Zubeir Mohsen, representing the Bagh-dad sponsored Arab Liberation Front, rejected the concept of a "democratic state," because: "If Israel would agree to it, then the Palestinian groups advocating it must accept it too."

The Arab Liberation Front, representing the pan-Arab leadership of the Be'athist party, is against formation of additional Arab states, advocating instead a single "Arab

The Saiga spokesman declared: "I cannot imagine a solution to the problem of the Jews in Palestine without allowing them to live either in Palestine or in any homeland of their choosing. I believe that many of them will choose to live outside Palestine, because Palestine cannot accommodate all the Falestinians and all the Jews that now live in Palestine."

And lastly, the Popular Demo-cratic Front spokesman declared that the concept of a democratic state in Palestine "cannot be fulfilled as long as the Igraeli entity exists in Palestine. There can be no coexistence with the Israeli en-

First Negro Votes

C.L. Sulzberger reads his history as poorly as he read the Moynihan Report. The first Negro voting, contrary to his Monday column, did not take place only after March 30, 1870. Sulzberger's record book, which might indeed have been his source, gave him the name of the first Negro to vote after the ratification of the 15th Amendment. Negroes voted in large numbers before that time (ever hear of Reconstruction?) and in fact, even before the Civil War. Sulzberger and his colleagues on The New York Times would serve the Negro cause better by reflecting a minute on the sources of Reconstruction's failure, and on the true message of Moynihan's memorandum, than by treating that document as they have done since it got onto their editorial page, to wit, by demagoguing it.

Mideast Marshall Plan?

Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns is reportedly proposing an international settlement for the Palestinian refugees which would be a kind of Marshall Plan. . .

It is clear that only the international community would be able to finance a plan providing homes for the refugees and eliminating an abscess which, as long as it remains, will poison the Middle East situation and prevent an end to the fighting.

One can, however, wonder whether Mr. Luns's appeal will succeed in shaking responsible leaders of all governments-especially those of the Christian West-from their indifferent torpor before the misery unfairly visited on many thousands of peo-

Hanoi is not making any progress in that direction at the Parls peace talks. Opinion in this country has ceased to generate irresistible pressure for peace. And Gen. Creighton Abrams's

Instead, the North Vietnamese have found cheaper ways to main-tain military momentum and keep pressure oo the United States. They moved thousands of troops other cheap shot became available when a right-wing coup overthrew Prince Norodom Sibanouk in Cam-bodia. So the North Vietnamese. who had loog used Cambodia as a base, went on the attack there too.

Thieu's Interests Hanol's instinct for widening the war is shared with a vengeance by the regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Salgon. President keep American troops on the scene as long as possibls. His third is which justifies the repression he uses to keep the regime in power.

All three of these interests are served by military engagement with the North Vietnamese. And the best place for fighting the North Vietnamese is to hit them at their bases in Cambodia. Indeed, the most prestigious military man in South Vietnam, Gen. Cao Van Vien, has long claimed he could win the war if he were allowed to take a bit of Cambodian territory.

So it was no surprise that the South Vistnamese stepped up their Cambodian border operations immediately after the coup in Phnom Penh ousted Prince Sihanouk. Indeed, suspicious persons pleased to believe that the coup was arranged from the outside would do far better to direct their inquiries to the Saigon government than to the Central Intelligence Agency. Not that all Americans are so

WASHINGTON.—You can't beat opposed to a little widening of the something with nothing even in Southeast Asia. So the myriad and some American military commanders on the spot conceive that their mission is to put in place a pro-American, anti-Communist regime. As part of that mission, they have look itched to cross over into Cambodia and hit the Communist bases there. They are not even particularly bothered by the prospect of slowing down the rate of American troop withdrawal from Vietnam, if that is necessary to help the Saigon government. So it is natural, not surprising. Vietnamese troops in some of their recent forays into Cambodia. And that American officials in Saigon should be talking, in the light of recent events, about stretching out the schedule for winding down Backed Into Conflict With all these forces promoting a wider and deeper war, it takes some doing to contain the conflict. After all, what led to the deep American involvement in the first place were these very same local conditions. American leaders did not, as sometimes alleged, want to get into the war. They were backed in by the thrust of events. They didn't have the wit and political necessary for staying out. That is roughly the position of the Nixon administration at this time. Unless the President takes decisive steps to contain the war, the force of events will push him into a wider conflict.

Exactly what steps to take is not in doubt. The central fact is that there is now serious military action in Vietnam, in Laos and in Cambodia. The Geneva Conference, set, up to 1954 and reconvened in 1962, offers a forum that covers all three countries. It should plainly be called again to seek a general regional settlement; the more so as it offers a way to move beyond the Paris peace talks, which are now deadlocked and subject to revivial only if this country abandons its past position by sending a new, high-level negotiator.

Suggestions that this country follow the Geneva route have been pushed inside the State Department and the Defense Department at the assistant secretary level. They have apparently been blocked by a political consideration-namely that to go to Geneva is to deviate from the Vietnamization line to which the administration has wedded itself.

But Vietnamization only creates conditions that work to widen the Wisdom lies not in holding tight to that policy, but in shifting to understand that the Vietnamization line won't work.

For Gen. Grigorenko, it was a second stay at Serbsky. In 1964, be was declared temporarily insane and confined there for a year following a series of written attacks on Khrushehev for a return to Stalinism.

Before the early sixtles, Gen. Grigorenko's record was unhlemished. A graduate of the Kuiybichev Military Engineering Academy, he took part in the World War II campaigns against the Japanese and Ger-mans and was awarded the Order of Lenin, Red Star and Order of the Red Flag. After the war he was appointed head of the cybernetics department of Frunze Military Academy the Soviet West Points, where he served until he began his anti-Stalinist writings.

"The contents of the conversation were of an unbelievable stupidity. Final Examination

On Nov. 19, the hospital called its commission together to give him its final examination. By that time, Gen. Grigorenko had been held for six months, with no letters, no visits from his wife and invalid child, with no answers from his two letters to Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, and no response to his numerous appeals that he be brought to trial He was led into a hig hall.

Four persons were seated in front of him, Prof. Lounts, Miss Maya Mikhailovna, a man he learned later was Mr. Morozov, director of legal psychiatry at Serbsky, and a strange indivi-dual dressed in a brown suit who sat sideways and, even when addressing Gen. Grigo-renko, kept his face covered. Observers, or perhaps trainees, ha writes, were seated along

The questions led him back over his life. He admitted coluntarily that he made "certain errors" in 1964, but errors of a Communist doctrinal nature rather than "psychiatric" errors. He explained to the commission:

"When a man makes a mistake, it doesn't necessarily mean. he is crazy . . Whenever I used to find a contradiction between the writings of Lenin and life, I saw only one solution: Return to the source, to Lenin. It was an error, Our life has undergone too many changes to be able to consult

Experience Is Vital

"We can only advance by re-lating the creative and theoretical heritage of Lenin to what goes on now as a kind of accumulated experience. I didn't understand any of that before and it was my essential error."
Throughout the diary, Gen.
Grigorenko is careful to keep the distinction between the "institution," which is out to prove him mad, and the "men," tha doctors, nurses, and authorities who seemed to be caught-up in the process. He points out that Prof. Lounts especially seemed embarrassed that Serbsky should be used for this kind of frame-up. As he nears the end of his ac-count of the final interview, his attention is drawn to the man in the brown suit. Who is he? Who does he represent? Is his the hidden face of the system that is bent-on declaring him mad? In his account, Gen. Grigorenko refers to him at first only by the initials MBS (man in the brown suit) and later on as MHF (man with the hidden

MHF asks his first question. Why hasn't the accused changed? Why didn't he profit by his early errors?

Protest Analyzed

It is here that Gen. Grigorenko gives his analysis of how protest has changed in the Soviet Union. Under Stalin, he says, secret Leninist organiza-tions were formed, illegal tracts published, calls for a new revolution issued. All that has changed secret organizations and no more tracts, but instead public and courageous declarations against flagrant ahuses, against lies and hypocrisy. Today, there is a fight for the rigorous re-spect of the laws and the constitutional rights of the people. Today, it is a public battle, within the law, for the democratization of our society."

"Today," he told the com-

"Obviously, if you believe that the only normal Soviet man is he who bows his head meekly in face of each arbitrary act of a bureaucrat, I am certainly abnormal. I am not capable of such humility, no matter how ong I must continue to fight."

MEF asks him why he insists on a trial. A "cure" would be best for all concerned. 'Cure' Unneeded

"I don't need a 'cure,' " Gen. Grigorenko replies, "and I don't intend to pretend that I need one. I am ready to answer fully for all I have done." The final notes were written in his cell following the interview and between Nov. 20 and 25. He did not know what the findings would be.
"When I know the results,"

he wrote, "I will know if only the institute itself is criminal, an anachronism of a hateful past, or if the people who work there are also criminals. The white jacket can conceal criminals dangerous for all human-fty." On Feb. 27, Gen. Grigorenko was declared guilty under tha Soviet penal code of "calumnies against the state' and declared irresponsible for his acts be-cause of mental deficiency. He is now incarcerated in the psychiatric penitentiary at Kamn.

W/ASHINGTON, April 1 (WP). -A Dutch professor has some old "new" words for edu-cating today's rebellious youth. Cive him a place of his own.

After all, as Dr. Jan Koning says, "we protect our beantiful nature—the Everglades, Yosemite, Yellowstone-but nowhere in our cities, nowhere in our countries do we have protected areas for youth."

Dr. Koning ran one of five Montessori schools for high-school-level youths. He is now a professor at the University of Amsterdam, teaching college students who will teach in high

Profit-Seeking Adults

He continues: "There is no spot where our teenagers can enjoy themselves in their own field. Don't mention here the street-corner society, the juke-box civilization. the drug-LSD-marijuana establishment, the sex experiments. These are only the counter-images of the real province of youth; they are mostly in the grip of only profit-seeking so-cleties of adults."

Dr. Roning said his views for revitalizing education stem from a Monessori concept now a half-century old. First, the youth needs "protection" and, second, "insight into existing society.

Protection means a . school

reservation, a city for teenagers, supervised by a teacher. Here the youth develops his own thinking, studies what he wants to study, at his own tempo, but, Dr. Koning emphasizes, "not alone but with the teacher's understanding."

Teachers in this "youth-domain" have a great deal to learn themselves, says Dr. Koning. "They have to learn to listen first, to listen second, and to listen and admire third." They also have to be "grounded very well" in language and mathematics and have a wealth of deep personal experiences to draw from for the presumably endless discussions the groups would have

Montessori Idea

Dr. Koning said that Dr. Montessori's idea of a school where youths can experiment with a new community would be a place where the youth would earn at least part of his own money. He would work on the farms, in offices, shops, factories and hotels of this "educational unit," says Dr. Koning.

The other side of the coin is that this cannot be a return to the cloisters of the Middle Ages. a "secluded area of peace" in some idyllic lodge. To make the concept work there must be a confrontation with existing society. Dr. Koning sees projects in which students get involved in communications between rich and poor, political leaders and delinquents in re-volt—"projects of discovery and

Increases in Steel Prices Spread

PTITISBURGH, April 1 (Reuters).—The 4.5 percent increase in bar and semi-finished steel har products announced Monday by Republic Steel Corp. spread throughout the industry today.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer, was first to fall in line behind Republic, the industry's third largest. The price hikes, covering some 17 percent of the industry's shipments, become effective April 15.

On the heels of U.S. Steel's move came word from Bethlehem Steel, No. 2, and Jones & Laughlin, sixth largest, that they were raising bar products by the same amount.

U.S. Steel also said it is increasing prices for rods and certain manufacturers' wires by an average of 4.7 percent. These products, it said, represent 2.5 percent of the industry's shipments.

Jones & Laughlin, a subsidiary of Ling-Temco-Vought, also broadened the range of increases by posting a $7-a-ton increase on semi-finished blooms, billets and slabs. In addition, it went along with CF&I Steel Corp.'s 8 percent increase on oil country casing and tubing, widely used in the oil industry.

Growth of business

Extracts from the annual statement to shareholders by the Chairman, Mr. A. D. Chesterfield, C.B.E.

There was an opsurga in activity in the second half of the year end it is with pleasure that I can tell you that the opportunities provided for us in difficult circumstances were welcomed and dealt with so successfully that once again we are able to show a highly satisfactory result.

The increase in profits from £731,543 to £821,012, the highest figure so far, is most gratifying and reflects great credit upon all members of our organisation. The Board has felt justified in recommending the payment of an increased dividend making the total for the year 12% as against the 10% forecast in the September statement.

Due to prevailing conditions our Arbitrage in securities has been less active than in 1968 but nevertheless made e satisfactory contribution to the profits of our business. Incidentally, I mentioned last year that we hed launched Tokyo Trust S.A. – an offshore investment trust for Japanese securities. I am glad to say that the issue was a success and the Ordinary shares of this trust have appreciated by about 45% in value during the first year of its existence. Our Investment Management, Corporate Finance end Merger Departments had a busy year. We started e new activity concerned with the provision of management services which our customers are finding very useful.

We have played an active pert in the Euro-currency markets end were instrumented in placing loans on behalf of foreign public corporations and companies. Early in 1969 we formed a new subsidiary company, Singer & Friedlander (Melta) Ltd., and are hopeful that in due course it will play its pert in that and development of the Island's economy. All our offices and our Swiss subsidiary have been actively engaged in securing new business".

The One Fully Liquid Method of Investing in Real Estate and Natural Resources

Parhaps never before in the World's history has the outlook for the real estate and natural resources industries been so promising. The World's population is exploding at an ever-increasing rate, creating a vast demand for new housing and a myriad of other facilities, more food, more products of every kind which use the earth's natural resources. In the United States alone 9 million additional acres of developed urban land will be required by 1990 over the 1990 to the second of the se urban land will be required by 1980 over the 1960 level. By 1980, the United States will be consuming over 70% more oil products and 120% more electricity than it did in 1960.

The Pan American Real Estate Equities Fund offers investors a most exceptional opportunity to participate in the great future growth of these industries - an opportunity for the aboveaverage gains that are to be expected in real estate investments while providing tha safety that is found in the complete liquidity of mutual funds.

The Pan Amarican Real Estate Equities Fund is a true mutual fund - investing primarily in marketable securities of United States companies engaged in real estate in its many facets and in natural resources. The Fund is 100% liquid...it is never permitted to make non-liquid investments directly in real properties. Our prospectus describes in detail tha many advantages of the Pan American Real Estata Equities Fund. Minimum investment $500. See your local Mutual Fund Dealer or mail the coupon.

By Alan Truscott

On the diagramed deal South boldly attempted game in the teeth of an opposing no-trump

West's jump to three clubs in response to one no-trump was weak, suggesting nothing but a long suit in the style now favored by a majority of tour-nament players. North's double was for take-out, and South jumped rather optimistically to four hearts. He was sure that he would find heart support in the dummy and at most one club, so he could judge that the combined hands would fit well. West made the routine lead of the club jack, which was a fatal error. As North's double implied length in the major suits and a club shortage, a diamond would have been a wiser lead and would have defeated the contract immediately. South ruffed the club lead in dummy, cashed the spade ace and ruffed a spade, South now made the good play of leading a trump to dummy's king, guarding against an eventual overruif in spades. On the face of it, this leaves him short of trumps for ruffing clubs, but he had seen deeply into the position. East took the heart king with the ace and returned the jack, which was taken by the queen in the closed hand. The declarer ruffed a club with dummy's last trump, cashed the spade king, and ruffed a spade.

As West had indicated six:

clubs by his bid, South now knew the exact distribution. He cashed his club ace, removing East's last club, and led his last trump. East was forced to win with the master trump and had only his three diamonds re-maining. Dummy's diamond king and established spade winner gave South two of the last three tricks for a total of

THE JOURNEY NOT THE ARRIVAL MATTERS. An Autobiography of the Years 1939.1969 By Leonard Woolf. Illustrated, Hercourt, Brace & World. 217 pp. $5.95.

Reviewed by Richard Freedman

SHORILY before he died last year at eighty-nine, Leonard Woolf completed the fivevolume autobiography which had occupied his last decade. It may be the liveliest and most humane work produced by ar octogenarian since Verdi's "Felstaff."

This final volume confirms one's growing suspicion that Woolf's autobiography has a long life ahead of it among the quietly distinguished documents of our time. For all its lack of literary fireworks, it is a consistently absorbing account of a good man's spiritual journey through the wasteland of the twentieh century—a journey nonetheless spiritual for the author's spiky agnosticism, nor the less exciting for his lack of posturing heroics.

Bir life story seems to proceed as gently as the River Ouse which flows past his home in Rodmell, but this is deceptive. Born in 1880, Woolf was old-fashioned enough to say that "an unjust law or a miscoviers of inchice hurts and carriage of justice hurts and jars me like a false quantity or a discord in the wrong place, or a bad poem, picture, or sonate, or the stupidity of the over-clever, or the perversion of the truth." His book is haunted by such long remembered cruelties as his own childhood drowning of a puppy, the Turkish persecution of the Armenians in 1894, and the notorious Dreyfus Case.

As a youthful civil servant in Ceylon, as a Fabian propa-gandist, editor of a variety of liberal political journals and co-founder with his wife Virginia of the Hogarth Press, Woolf had always fought; gently but untiringly, for the claims of humanity and civilization against the encroaching barbarism of his time. By the end, he had to "make the rather ignominious confession... that I must have in a long life ground through between 150,000 and 200,000 hours of perfectly useless work." But as his title, taken from Montaigne, reminds us. "The journey not the arrival matters."

The first half of the book gives a clear-eyed but heart-rending account of Virginia Woolf's "arrival," by drowning, on March 28, 1941. When war broke out, the Woolfs had made plans for suicide abould Hitler ever conquer England, although they did not know at the time that, along with Shaw, wells, Fursier, Orwell, and the rest of England's literary elite, they had an honored place on the Gestapo's Rouidation list. Then they watched the Battle of Britain raging in the pastoral skies above them. Their house in London, containing the Hogarth Press-and the magnificent eighteenth-century li-brary Virginia had inherited from her father, was gutted by bombs. Although she was tem-porarily buoyed by completing her lovely, lyric evocation of England, "Between the Acts," Virginia felt another severe attack of insanity approaching. After writing stoically moving valedictory notes to Leonard and her sister Vanessa, she disappeared. Woolf found her walking stick op the banks of walking-stick on the banks of the Ouse; three harrowing weeks later some schoolboys downstrag, Ophelia-like, among the rushes. As streng a victim of the war as it she had been killed by a being, this great and delicate novelist was cremated to the strains of the Dance of the Biessed Spirits from Glucks. "Orice ed Euridica."

The rest of the book is concerned with picking up the pieces. After an argument with John Lehmann about expansion, Woolf sold the Hogarth Press to the larger Chatto and Windus, although he kept a watchful eye on things to the

In its fifty-year history, the Press, which had been started as an amateur experiment in occupational therapy, had published Rilke, Freud and T. S. Eliot for the first time in England, and had actually managed to sell 7.000 copies of Virginia's masterplece, "To the Lighthouse," in the first five years of its publication.

With the Press gone. Woolf visited Israel, which changed his earlier anti-Zionist stand, and returned to Ceylon for the first time since he had worked there, some sixty years before. Fully expecting to be execrat-ed as a remnant of the bad old days of British imperialism, Woolf was happily surprised at the warmth of his welcome George Orwell, who had held a similar post in Burms, once observed that in those innocent days, T did not even know that the British Empire [was] dying, still less did I know that it [was] a great deal better than the younger empires that [would] supplant it." Similarly, Woolf discovered that Ceylon looked back with some nostalgia to the days of the Raj. as a time when government was et least disinterested and uncorrupt.

Although it is sketchy in places, and ends rather abruptly, this final volume is a fitting capstone to the remarkable autobiography of a good man. Woolf is always honest with himself and the reader. Emerg-ing from a crowded air-raid shelter during the Blitz, he observes that like so many con-vinced and fervent democrats, in practice I have never found human beings physically in the mass at all attractive."

This scrupulousness of selfanalysis is a rare commodity in these "image"-obsessed days. and with the deaths of Woolf and Bertrand Russell, only E. M. Forster, in his nineties, is still around to remind us that in Bloomsbury, once, a few peo-ple managed to combine culture with honesty, and social idealism with good manners.

Mr. Freedman teaches English at Simmons College. He wrote this review for "Book World," literary supplement of The Washington Post.

The Bulls stretched their advantage in the third quarter to 73-63. But Atlanta battled back to cut the Chicago lead to 78-76 after three quarters and then took charge in tha final period as Walt Hazzard led the way with 32 points and Loy Hudson finished with 30. Coach Dick Motta of the Bulls kept shaking his head and said "They could have been had Atlanta can end it all Friday night when a victory would give the Hawks a sweep of the series. If they falter Friday, they figure to clinch it Sunday at Atlanta where the Bulls have yet to win a game this season.

Earl Monroe, with 34 points; Wes Unseld with 24 rebounds; and Kevin Loughery, with only four baskets but at extremely opportuna moments, were the mainsprings of the Baltimore victory that delighted a capacity crowd of 12,289. Gus Johnson, Jack Marin and Fred Carter did the rest of the heavy work.

The Knicks, beaten by 13 points in New York two days ago, had one of their poorest shooting nights of the season, making only 38 of their 99 shots. Their total of 92 points was their lowest this season. They got 20 points and 15 rebounds from Willis Reed, and 25 points from Walt Frazier, but only one other Knick, Dave DeBusschera with 12, reached double

Nevertheless, the outcome was in doubt going into the last three minutes, even though Balti-mora once led by 21 points. Tha Knicks kept bouncing back after being badly outplayed for several minutes at a time.

The Bullets took a 51-36 lead in the first 21 minutes on bursts of 10-2 and 19-8. But before intermission, the Knicks produced a 10-2 spurt of their own, triggered hy Frazier, and went off trailing 53-46.

The Bullets then opened the second half with an 18-4 tear to 71-50, and led 75-54 with 5 minutes 20 seconds to go in the period. But the Knicks came at them again, while the Bullets went scoreless for more than 5 minutes, and in a 17-2 streak that carried into the fourth period, New York found itself down 77-71 with more than 11 minutes to play.

The pendulum kept on swinging and at 2:55, with the score 94-88, Loughery made one of his big' baskets, a 20-footer and when Unseld cleared the rebound after a Knick miss, Monroe threw in one of his incredible shots off a long hack to the basket dribble and it was 98-88 Baltimore was home free.

The Knicks were beaten off the boards again, 59-48. The Baltimore defense kept them from getting inside for a good shot, and Unseld's board control enabled the Bullets to fastbreak

Pele Protected From Kidnapping

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 1 (UPI).—Pele, Brazil's World Cup soccer star, has been under tight security guard ever since police in Venezuela arrested a former guerrilla element who said a terrorist group planned to kidnap him during the World Cup soccer championship.

Three police officers and a patrol car were assigned to the Brazilian team's quarters south of downtown Rio de Janeiro to watch for suspects. At night the security force is increased by two. "I am not afraid of being kidnapped." Pele said recently. "Why should I be afraid? Aren't the victims of the kidnappers always well treated? The only problem would be to remain in a small room for several days, and to go about the city blindfolded." During the World Cup elimina-tion matches in Venezuela last year Pele was guarded by four special security agents because of similar threat.

Ready for the F-112?

WASHINGTON -The Senate is now holding hearings on the F-111 airplane, originally called the TFX. It is developing in the hearings that this allwenther, supersonic, electronic marvet can do things no other plane can do. The only thing it can't do is

I spoke to one of the designers of the F-112, who told me that they were ready to so ahead on production of it as soon as the Air Force started scranping the F-111

"How will your plane dilfer from the F-1119" I asked lum. "We think that with certain modifications, our plane can do anything the F-111 does, plus get off the ground. The Air Force told us that while they consider the F-111 the finest plane ever desigued, their defense needs for the 70s would have to include some kind of craft that could get into the

Cannonball Count Falls Short At Italian Castle

ROME, April 1 (UPI).-Someone has stolen a 400-yearold 5 1 2 pound cannonball from Sant'Augelo Castle.

The management of the museum, housed in the ancient papal fortress on the banks of the Tiber, said today that a routine check showed a stone cannonball missing from one of the many piles in the court-

"There must have been a hunter amoug our a spokesman said. visitors. "though I don't know how he managed to spirit out a thing of that size and weight."

Department insisted they wanted a plane that could fly." "All Defense asks is that when a company wins a contract, it make an honest effort to do what it promised to do." "Bot billions of dollars have been lost on the F-111," I said.

"You must understand the background on building planes for the military. Most plane designs, when originally submitted to the Pentagon for bids. look like Piper Cubs. Then someone says, 'Can you add some equipment so it will fly above clouds? The manuinclurer says, 'of course.' Then someone else says, How about adding guns and bombs?' The manufacturer says that will increase the cost of the plane, but Defense says it doesn't care. Then R general demands carry nuclear weapous, which problem, provided Defeose will pick up the bill.

"During production, someone remembers the plane should be oble to fly in all knids of weather at simost any speed. The manufacturer says they were thinking of the same thing, so they add more equipment to the plane. Theu someone suggests a computer be installed which can do most of the work for the pilot.

"The computer is added. which forces the designers to increase the size of the engine. which makes the frame workers increase the size of the wings, which causes the en-gineers to restructure the undercarriage, which brings about a suggestion that instead of one pilot, the plane have two, which means that snother seat has to be added. which adds weight causing the designers to have second thoughts about the size of the flaps.

"By this time everyone is so excited about all the features of the plane, which can fight at night as well as doy, in for as well as clear weather, bomb on land as well as sea, and refuel in the midst of a hurri-cane, as well as carry any atootic weapon in our wellplenished srsenal, that the question of its flying is completely forgotten. Only after the wings start falling off does Congress get a little mad." "But if Defense goes alread with the F-112, what will it co with the F-111s it's already paid for?"

They could give them to the U.S. Army. You couldn't ask for a better-designed tank in the world."

Student Revolutionary Replaces the Prince

HEIDELBERG, Germany AFI .- Don't expect to encounter the Student Prince swaggering through the narrow streets of this ceoturies-old university

He is long gone, supplanted by the student revolutionary. His gay love songs have been drawned out by chants of "Mao Tse-tung," or "Victory in the people's war.'

Heidelberg University, founded in 1286, is the oldest in Germany. It became the symbol of 19th-century German romantleism, and the pretty pleture of German student-life fostered by the operetta "The Student Prince" still beguiles the imagination.

But the administration building's ground-floor windows are barred against student invaders. Burbed wire entwines the top of gates leading to an inner courtyard and plasterboard replaces a door ripped off its binges and burned in an anti-Victnam demonstration.

Some thiogs do not change. The old town is still a narrow strip cradled by the wooded hills where the Neckar River breaks out of the Odenwald. The russel ruins of the castle still brood over the

There are still student fraternitles, but it's rare to see anyone wearing "cap and colors" anymore.

Some students still go to the Red Ox where the smoke-blackened walls are cluttered by old prints, drinking mugs and pewter, and the tables are scored by the initials of those who have passed through Heidelberg.
But students are outnumbered by American soldiers and German and foreign tourists looking for the Student Prince atmosphere. Today's student is more likely to be dressed in leans and a jacket and esting pizza or drinking inexpensive wine in one of the countless small bars with 30 chairs and 50 customers. Like their counterparts in France or the United States, German students are in rebellion against authority and against

There are cries of "educational crisis" and strikes by high school students as thousands are turned away from overcrowded university classes and laboratories. The traditional give and take of the seminar is mocked by enrollments of hundreds, and anatomy exercises become a macabre farce when 20 to 40 scalpelarmed medical students crowd around one

Only 45 of every 10,000 Germans go to universities compared with 200 of 10,000 in the United States and 117 in Russia. Only 5 to 7 percent of West German university students are from the families of workers. Heldelberg University, which survived devastation in the 30 Years War and destruction by the French in the late 17th century, has made some reforms.

The university has adopted a new constitution to meet demands of students and junior staff for a voice in choice of officials, course offerings and exam requirements.

Until December the Great Senate which makes major decisions was the private preserve of the "herr professor doctors" who chose the rector and ran the university pretty much as they

Now there are representatives of all groups in the senate and the professors have only 38 perceot of the vote. For the first time in Heidelberg's history, a student has been picked as senate chair-man and in February the senate elected a 44-year-old theology professor as rector. "He was voted in against the professors," said the loser. Werner Conze, a 59-yearold history professor who served as rector for five months and was branded an arch conservative by the leftist stu-

Dr. Conze illustrates the swift pace of change. Only two years ago he was the liberal candidate for rector.

German professors are actually state officials appointed to posts of lifetime teutre with salaries in the 60,000-mark ($16,000) range and many earn much

Under the system generally prevailing in German universities, a professor who directs an institute or heads a clinic is a formidable, father figure with almost unlimited power over his assistants and graduate students, who still call him R doctor father."

"The university serves the ruling classes in capitalism and it's not enough to change it. We have to abolish the present system." a student said.

The universities are supported by the individual states in West Germany. A student can get by on something like 3,500 marks ($980) a year.

But a working-class father might only have a get income of 8,000 to 12,000 marks ($3,185 to $3,278) a year, and even with tax concessions granted for a student in the family, it would be quite expensive. As a rule, most students finish nigh school and enter a university at 20. The average age for completion of studies is 27-longer when advanced degrees are earned.

For many students there are no examinations at all until after two years-a situation not much changed from that described by Mark Twain wheo he passed through Heldelberg nearly 100 years ago and remarked student life was "a very free life."

Twain said the German student "is not entered at the university for any particular length of time, so he is likely to change about. He passes no examina-tion upon eotering college. He merely pays a trifling fee of $5 or $10, receives a card entitling him to the privileges of the university and that is the end of it. He is now ready for business, or play as he shall prefer."

There is increasing criticism of "stu-deots who eloquently defend their right to 14 semesters of study" while other students are turned away for lack of
